PROJECTS

Eraova

A webshop built on the Shopify platform. I was responsible for all programming on this project. I had limited experience working with Shopify before, but throughout this project I learned a lot about building an entire site on the platform. I also gained experience in designing the structure of a large project and managing the client.

Uniavisen

A large online newspaper for University of Copenhagen. The site is build on Wordpress, and throughout the project I learned a lot about that platform. The website support many different types of articles, which each consist of different kind of modules. My role was building some of these modules, while also doing other small sections. I learned a lot about developing a project for a large client, and making sure the quality is high enough to reach their expectations.

Knabstrup Keramik

A website with built in webshop for the revived Knabstrup Keramik brand. I was one of two developers responsible for the project. I learned a lot by being responsible for a large project, and delivering high quality in a limited timeframe.
